

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

Radiation-image information is input from a radiation-image measuring apparatus to a measurement-information storing section, and measurement information, which consists of the positional information of a measuring point and a result of measurement based on the positional information, is also input from the radiation-image measuring apparatus to the measurement-information storing section. The measurement information is related to the radiation-image information by the measurement-information storing section and is stored in a storage medium.